

ABSTRACT

[0052] A real-time feedback survey system and method allowing for responses to survey questions to be input by users and received by the surveyor in real-time is provided. This result is achieved by using a media player to provide a request for feedback information to a remote responding device, the remote responding device allowing response input and incorporating a transmitter for transmitting the response to a central facility.